

When you move from leading people to leading organisations, the playbook changes fundamentally. Technical expertise stops being your primary asset. The scale of accountability expands dramatically. The information you need to make good decisions becomes harder to get, and more people have reasons to filter it. The Advanced Leadership Framework is a comprehensive, practical resource for experienced executives and senior leaders — covering strategic leadership, the board relationship (12 dedicated chapters), organisational culture, executive influence, transformation at scale, and the inner game that most leadership resources leave out entirely.

WHAT'S INSIDE

Eight parts. Everything an executive leader needs.

Part 1 — The Executive Shift 4 chapters on what changes at the top: accountability, the expertise trap, reading weak signals, and protecting the time that only you can fill.	Part 2 — Strategic Leadership 4 chapters: strategic thinking, decision-making under uncertainty, communicating strategy across an organisation, and resource allocation as a strategic act.
Part 3 — The Board & Governance 12 chapters on the CEO-board relationship: reporting to partnership, closing the gap between meetings, boardroom EQ, managing the information gap, and trust repair.	Part 4 — Organisational Culture 3 chapters: culture as an executive instrument — what produces it, how to diagnose it accurately, and what actually changes it at scale.
Part 5 — Influence & Executive Presence 4 chapters: what executive presence actually is, influencing without authority, navigating organisational politics, and stakeholder strategy.	Parts 6–8 — Transformation, Inner Game & Legacy 11 chapters: leading change at scale, building resilience, values under pressure, building a leadership pipeline, succession, and your leadership legacy.

"The dimension most leadership resources leave out entirely is the inner game — identity, resilience, values under pressure, and how to sustain yourself over a long executive career. This is often where experienced executives struggle most."
